

PRACTICE FOCUS

Ryan Patino is a member of Offit Kurman's Landlord Representation practice group. His focus is on counseling corporations and small businesses in matters involving complex real estate transactions, litigation, and compliance with federal and D.C. housing laws. Mr. Patino handles all aspects of litigation on behalf of real estate development and property management companies, which includes landlord and tenant matters, contract disputes, defending against allegations of discrimination, and administrative cases. He is a decisive and aggressive litigator who is adept at determining the financial value of a given case and designing a strategy that leads to the best possible outcome for his clients. Aside from litigation, Mr. Patino also assists clients with negotiating and drafting residential and commercial leases, secondary lease documents, purchase and sale agreements, bylaws, and contractor agreements.
