PRACTICE FOCUS

Lynn M. Terrebonne focuses her practice on complex patent litigation. She is an experienced first chair trial attorney and leads Offit Kurman's Hatch-Waxman Litigation Team. Lynn has led Hatch-Waxman teams in numerous cases many of which settled on favorable terms prior to trial. She also represents clients in litigations involving design patents, trademark and copyright infringement and the theft of trade secrets. Lynn has a unique combination of experience in both intellectual property and science. She spent eleven years carrying out inter-disciplinary research at the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB) covering the fields of platelet physiology, protein chemistry, immunochemistry and enzymology. Additionally, while at UAB she participated in the working group that discovered the gene responsible for Cystic Fibrosis.
